About Tolworth Court Sports Ground

Tolworth Court sports ground has been used as a venue for outdoor sports by Kingston University for over 35 years. The fifty-five acre site has fourteen football pitches, two rugby union pitches, two cricket squares and a floodlit multi-use hard court area for netball, tennis and five-a-side football. The facilities are used extensively not only by the University but also by members of the local community.

In October 2010 the University opened a new sports pavilion at the site. Set over two floors, the new pavilion has fourteen team changing rooms (each with their own shower areas), officials' changing areas, a first-aid room and a social area with viewing balcony. The pavilion makes use of various green technologies to minimise its environmental impact, including solar thermal panels and a ground source heat pump.

The new facilities, in keeping with our new sports strategy, will significantly enhance our ability to increase levels of participation in sport and physical activity, improve the performance levels of our sports clubs and teams, develop our students through sport and play a key role in developing sport in the local area.
